Click on the link below to read detailed instructions on how to connect Space Navigation devices to the Windows Media Player Have you ever noticed how fast a band can build up a live setlist, especially at some of the bigger festivals, and how many of the artists you follow throughout the year always have an album of unreleased material floating around somewhere that they're going to share with people at a live show? For example, you know that just before one of the recent Foo Fighters shows, I saw Dave on Twitter mentioning that he was going to be streaming off the new album in conjunction with the live show Microsoft has released a security advisory that outlines how a malicious Windows Media Player (WMP) application can result in the loss of your private data including: address book, calendar entries, text messages, saved passwords, and contact information. There are no known workarounds for this vulnerability. We recommend that you remove Microsoft WMP 12 from your system immediately, because it could allow the malicious application to send your private information to another person. The malicious application may be preinstalled with another program that you have installed on your computer. Microsoft WMP 12 is preinstalled on many multimedia devices that ship with Apple's QuickTime Player. It is also preinstalled on computers that are part of the Apple Multimedia Keyboard (as of September 2010) and shipped with many versions of Microsoft Office for Mac. The malicious application can also be installed if you download files or click on links from malicious Web sites or from spam or other programs that send you a file called WMP12.exe. Some previous versions of Microsoft Windows for x64 processors are also vulnerable to a similar attack. For more information on these older versions of Windows, see Microsoft Security Bulletin MS08-068, published July 18, 2008 (see If you use a supported version of Windows, you are protected. Microsoft has created a free tool that helps verify the version of Microsoft Windows that you have installed on your computer. You can download Microsoft WMP Security Checker from to help protect your data from these kinds of attacks. For people who create applications to run on Windows, the

In this section you will find simple and fully working example of a Windows Media Player control written with WMP 3Dconnexion Controls Library. This WMP Control uses the 3Dconnexion Space Navigation device to control the Windows Media Player. Installing the 3Dconnexion Space Navigation Device: After you have downloaded the WMP3DCNL.zip file, extract it to your desktop. If you have multiple Space Navigation devices and you wish to use them with this sample control, extract the TMPCNL.dll from the WMP3DCNL.zip into each of your Space Navigation device's image folder (for example your space navigation device is called KMONE, you can extract the file to your desktop like so): Extract the files: 1) To view, modify and change the Star Rating you first need to get the location of the Windows Media Player: - Open Control Panel - Click "View devices and printers" - Click "Devices and Printers" - Click "Windows Media Player" - Click "Playback" - Locate and right click the file that you wish to rate and select "Copy shortcut location" - Click "Start" - If needed, enter the location of the shortcut for a pop-up. Once the location is ready right click again on the Windows Media Player icon and select "Paste shortcut" - Open Windows Media Player - Click "OK" - If the settings are not loaded you'll need to load them the next time you open Windows Media Player. 2) Right click and select "Open In..." and select "Navigation & Location WMP-Control". 3) Click "OK" 4) Right click the navigation device and select "Set the Rating" 5) Click "OK" 6) Repeat for the other space navigation devices. Example of Star Ratings: Here are two pictures of the same song. The song is one by the band "Pink Floyd" called "Keep Talking (ots)" which is part of the Pink Floyd album "A Momentary Lapse of Reason". The top picture shows the star rating of the song. We can see that the song is rated 4 stars. Here you can also see the 3Dconnexion Space Navigation devices located on the desktop. The bottom picture shows the song's info. You can see that there are no 3Dconnexion Navigation devices on the device list. Here is
